'Mutant Vase' • 2014

Yiannis Ghikas has created a 3D-printed vase inspired by the special effects in science fiction movies that show alien creatures moving under a person's skin. The impression of something pushing through to the surface from the inside is expressed by the gradual transition from perfectly smooth to ribbed outer surface, visible when the vase is rotated or walked around. The designer describes the vase as having 'a "mutation" that gradually appears and disappears'.
